Response to Amendment

This is in response to an amendment file on November 6th, 2003 for letter for patent filed on February 13th, 2001 in which claims 1-30 were presented for examination. In the amendment, claims 1, 3-8, 19-21 and 23-26 have been amended, claims 2 and 22 have been canceled, and no claim has been added. Claims 1, 3-21 and 23-30 remain pending in the letter.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Griggs (U.S. PG Pub No. 2002/0029384).

3. As per claims 1, 9, 10, 19, Griggs teaches a method of distributing a document of a user comprising registering document distribution request service of a plurality of document distribution providers, receiving a distribution request of the document for the user, compiling a list of distribution options for the document based on the document distribution service of the document providers and presenting the list of the distribution options for the document to the user (see abstract, fig 1A-9, column 0037, 0040, 0043, 0048, 0049).

4. As per claims 3-8, 11-18 and 20, 21 and 23-30, they disclose the same inventive concept as claims 1. Therefore, they are rejected under the same rationale.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments filed November 6th, 2003 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

a. Applicants argue that the prior art fail to teach an inventive concept of a method and system for distributing document of a user. Applicants further argue that the prior art fail to teach a method or system for managing document distribution services. Examiner respectfully disagrees with Applicants' characterization of the prior art. Griggs et al teach an architecture and system for and a method of distributing content data to user locations. Preferably, the content data comprises program data from one or more content providers. The programs can scheduled programs and/or stored video programs. The content data is preferably distributed to user locations as data transmissions which can be played or viewed at user locations. The system server is preferably in communication with content providers (user) over the system network. The system server surveys content data availabilities and catalogues the content data availabilities into program schedules in accordance with user codes. According to an embodiment of the instant invention, the content data providers automatically send updated program availabilities data to the system server. Alternatively, the system server accesses various content data providers over the system network and extracts data regarding program availabilities. Therefore the prior art teach and suggest a method and system for distributing document of a user and method or system for managing document distribution services.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).
